The size of our responsibility

The Brazilian Forum on Public Safety (BFPS) is today the main network of cooperation in public safety in Brazil and the most recognized organization articulating the various agents in this sector. In this way, it has consolidated itself as a plural and, at the same time, very coherent and cohesive space focused on a project of valorization of the rights agenda in the country. For us, public safety requires effective strategies to control fear, violence and crime without, having to abdicate the respect for citizenship and the rule of law.

We are almost 300 associates, with 30% occupying or having already held high positions in the public administration in the three levels of Government and in several organizations of the area. We are federal, judiciary, military police officers and municipal guards; we are academic researchers, secretaries and public managers; leaders of other civil society organizations and justice operators. We are Brazilians engaged in a project of transformation and modernization of a much discussed area, but in the last decades, little prioritized by public policies.

FOR US, PUBLIC SAFETY REQUIRES
EFFECTIVE STRATEGIES TO CONTROL FEAR,
VIOLENCE AND CRIME, WITHOUT, FOR THIS,
HAVING TO ABDICATE THE RESPECT FOR CITIZENSHIP AND THE RULE OF LAW.

Transparency and frank/respectful dialogue are our guides. We seek consensus. However, we recognize frictions and conflicts when they exist. In an era of so-called post-truth, by which beliefs are built upon fragile evidence and ideological preferences, the BFPS invests heavily in the circulation of qualified and methodologically and scientifically accredited information. Prioritizing lives and numbers that matters.

Similar to the Brazilian Institute of Geography and Statistics (IBGE), the BFPS has become an indispensable information and research agency for the production and dissemination of knowledge related to public safety and violence prevention.

Our messages have achieved great repercussion. They resulted on more than 10.9 thousand press quotes and reached more than 100 million Brazilians in the last 12 months only at the time of the releasing of the 10th Edition of the Brazilian Yearbook of Public Safety. Many of them have become part of the public domain, that is, they are in the mouths and minds of various segments of society. The repercussion of the knowledge produced is our pride, one of the greatest contributions we make to the Brazilian people.

The added value of the BFPS has been its contribution in framing the public debate in the area. For us, this also proves the real impacts beyond the factual news and/or specific supports and cooperation that we can offer. There is a political role being played and it needs to be recognized and valued.

WE ARE BRAZILIANS ENGAGED IN A PROJECT OF TRANSFORMATION AND MODERNIZATION OF A MUCH DISCUSSED AREA, BUT IN THE LAST DECADES, LITTLE PRIORITIZED BY PUBLIC POLICIES.

Phrases such as "Brazil recorded more victims of intentional violent deaths in 5 years than the war in Syria in the same period" and / or "Every 11 minutes a person is raped in Brazil" are BFPS quotes that are being used, among others, throughout the country to mobilize and raise awareness among the population and the authorities for the perverse effects of the bankrupt of the Brazilian public safety system.

As if these communication impacts were not enough, the technical and coordination team of the BFPS, participated, between July 2016 and June 2017, in 98 external activities of institutional representation, between public hearings, technical and scientific events, and meetings with authorities. This number do not even include associates'activities. This means an average of one activity every four days.

In addition to that, there are many projects conducted by the network of members, which help with connections and the strengthening of a project of change capable of overcoming today's obstacles placed to the modernization of the criminal justice system and of public safety.

Our Annual Meetings, in the same way, have brought people and entities together to focus on thinking and proposing democratic solutions for public safety. Every year, hundreds of participants meet in several activities and sessions that help composing new ways to formulate and implement public policies.

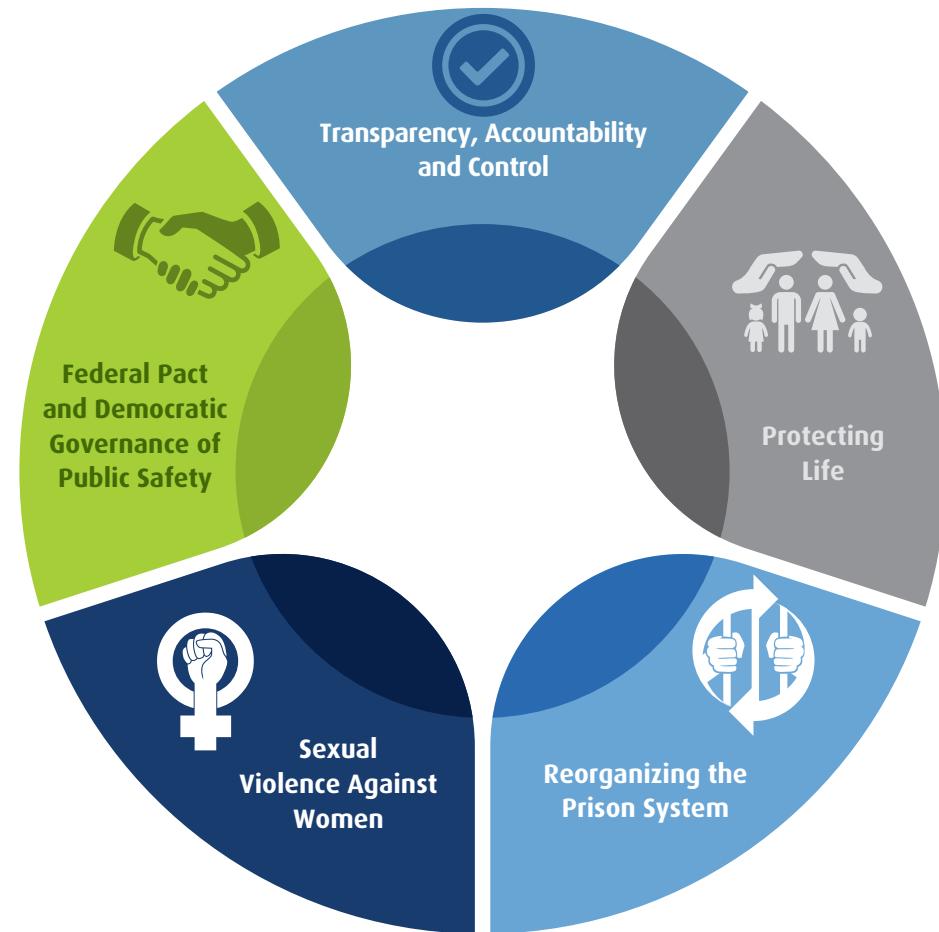

[...] THERE ARE POLITICAL AND INSTITUTIONAL OPTIONS THAT NEED TO BE VERY EXPLICIT AND REVIEWED IF WE REALLY WISH TO LIVE IN A LESS VIOLENT COUNTRY, IN WHICH LIVES ARE OF CENTRAL VALUE FOR PUBLIC POLICIES.

In addition to all of that, the responsibility of the BFPS in maintaining itself as a plural space of reference is huge. The fact is that, Brazil is immersed in a crisis that does not show cooling signals, and for us, behind the numbers of the Brazilian tragedy, there are political and institutional options that need to be exposed and reviewed if we really wish to live in a less violent country, in which lives are of central value.

BFPS Strategic Goals – 2016 to 2018

Since its creation, the BFPS acts based on guidelines and values defined in its bylaws. Every two years, it is held its expanded strategic planning meeting, which includes the participation of the executive team, the administrative and fiscal council and some external guests that contribute to equalize expectations and challenges.

The current work plan in force recommends that the annual project cycle is built with a view to achieving the objectives and seize opportunities for innovation and / or sustainability of the BFPS and consists of five major axes, namely:

THE CONVERSATION

Brazil's biggest problem isn't corruption — it's murder

Salvo países em que o conservadourismo religioso impõe regras rígidas, parece evidente que o condão ao feminicídio melhorou no século 20 e neste. Devo dizer, no entanto, que muitas distâncias permanecem.

No Brasil, as mulheres trabalham 75% a mais, por semana, que os homens, segundo levantamento do Instituto de Pesquisa Econômica Aplicada (Ipea). Em 2000, esse número era de 68 horas, ou seja, 16 horas a mais por semana. Os dados fazem parte da série histórica de 1995 a 2015 da Pesquisa sobre Inquérito de Demografia e Saúde (Pids), do Ipea.

A descrença decorre, como é sabido, do trabalho não remunerado. A menos com a paulada incorporação das mulheres ao mundo do trabalho, de 55% para 59%, em 2015, 10 trabalhadoras cumpriram a segunda jornada em casa, ante metade dos homens. O que é estranho para mim é o tempo dedicado para isso, que é de 31 horas semanais para 24,0 contingente masculino dedicava 20 anos antes, em 1995, 23%.

Caro leitor, com suas milhares de horas, leia o resto da matéria.
